ENDOWMENT FUNDS

An endowment fund is a separate account that can be established within the structure of a registered charity, such as the Centraide of Greater Montreal Foundation. Donations that supply the fund's capital are tax-deductible.

Your donations

are invested

A simple way to invest and give

Creating an endowment fund with the Centraide of Greater Montreal Foundation is similar to setting up your own private foundation but without the worry of having to create or manage this type of entity or deal with the related administrative tasks and costs.

Easy and flexible

While we above all recommend that your fund go toward the network of community agencies supported by Centraide of Greater Montreal, you may choose to donate to other charities.*

Centralizing your investments will simplify your tax formalities, and you will get a single tax receipt.

*Certain conditions apply.

Grow your generosity and your long-term impact

The invested assets generate tax-free income, which lets you optimize your charitable giving and your impact over the long term. This fund could therefore outlive you and become a family project. Naming your fund after you or your family makes a significant personal statement and will highlight the importance of fighting poverty and social exclusion for years to come.

Benefits

This type of gift is for you if you want to:

- Enjoy the tax benefits of a substantial donation after receiving a significant inflow of assets (for example, from the sale of a business, the exercise of a stock option, or a major inheritance)
- Make a donation right now and/or as part of your estate
- Provide your donations from a single, centralized source of funding
